

SOLID COLOR LOKTA PAPERS

Lokta paper is prepared by the age old technique of traditional Nepalese papermaking, dating back to the 11th century. With little machine help, the papermakers beat the fibers by hand, form each sheet by hand in a local stream, and dry them in the sun. These papers are prepared from the fibrous bark of the Daphne Cannabina, otherwise known as Lokta, which grows at high altitudes in the Himalayas and is an abundant natural resource for the region.

Lokta fiber is strong and impervious to insects and maintains excellent archival properties.

Each sheet is handmade and hand-dyed, thus they are subject to slight variation in color and thickness, making each sheet unique. Our heavyweight Lokta papers are strong, with a bit of texture, but still smooth enough to work with any print method; traditional or modern. It is often used for bookbinding, card making and collage. Lighterweight Lokta is also stocked in certain colors.

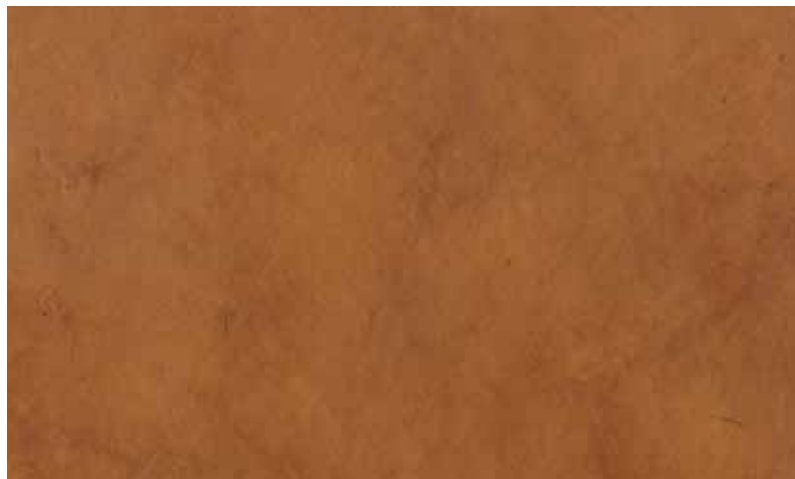

Our Large Format Lokta Natural paper is 3 feet x 6 feet! It has one rough-textured side and one smooth side. Images of both sides are shown towards the end of this catalog.
